(HOUSTON) November 18, 2022 – Twenty of the over 100 rabbits who were rescued back in September from deplorable living conditions at a hoarder home in Glendale, Arizona will soon be up for adoption at the Houston SPCA. The animal rescue and protection organization is working with Arizona Humane Society to transfer the bunnies to Texas that include a lionhead, Himalayan and Holland lops. The 12-hour drive also includes a stop at a sanctuary in San Antonio. The remaining rabbits were placed into foster homes or adopted in Arizona.

Those interested in adopting should visit HoustonSPCA.org regularly for photos and additional information as they become available. Rabbits make excellent small pets as they can be playful, independent and can be as affectionate as a canine. It's important to note, they are not short-term pets as some rabbits can live as long as 12 years. Also, many rabbits like to be near their owners or sit on a lap rather than be picked up or cuddled. It's a factor to consider as they may not be ideal pets for a young child.

The Houston SPCA is a 501(c) (3) non-profit that operates solely on donations. They are not affiliated with any other animal welfare organization, locally or nationally.
